About Fluidstack

We exist to make humanity more free. For most of human history, you farmed or you starved. Technology gave people more time for the things they wanted to do, instead of things they had to do. Powerful AI will be the biggest lever for human choice we've ever built - but only if models are aligned with what humanity actually wants. There are groups building AI who don't share these goals. Whoever deploys frontier compute infrastructure fastest will decide whether AI expands human freedom or shrinks it.

We're singularly focused on delivering 10 to 100s of GWs of compute faster than anyone else, rethinking every layer of the stack. We acquire power, design and build data centers, and operate them - with teams spanning hardware and software. Speed and scale are our key differentiators. Come be a part of building civilization-scale infrastructure for AI.

We hire people who care deeply about this problem space. If that is you, please apply!

How We Operate

- Extreme ownership. Full autonomy. Own things end to end, take on scope without being asked, no permission required to operate outside your core role.
- Velocity. We drive everything forward as fast as possible.
- First principles. Challenge every assumption. Zero analogy thinking, no egos, the best idea wins.
- Love of the game. The frontier of AI is the most interesting problem of our time. We put in long hours at high intensity to push the frontier forward.

How This Works

This is for people who want to help build civilization-scale AI infrastructure but don't see the exact role that fits them yet. If that's you, this is the place to apply.

Our recruiting team reads every resume and routes the strongest ones to the team closest to your fit. If there's a match, we'll be in touch. If the right opening doesn't exist yet, we keep promising applications on file - and we're growing fast, so that doesn't stay true for long.

We are committed to pay equity and transparency.
